

CONTENTS

Preface	xi
Introduction	1
The Problem of Sources	1
Approaches to the Sources	5
Critique of the Skeptical Approach	25

PART I

The Intellectual Context of Early Islamic Historical Writing

1. The Date of the Qur'ānic Text	35
The Problem	35
Qur'ān and Ḥadīth on Religious and Political Authority	40
Qur'ān and Ḥadīth on the Prophet's Contemporaries	46
Anachronisms in Qur'ān and Ḥadīth	47
Qur'ān and Ḥadīth on Earlier Prophets	49
Qur'ān and Ḥadīth on Muḥammad	50
Qur'ān and Ḥadīth on Prayer	52
Qur'ān and Ḥadīth on Intercession and the Deceased	53
The Lexicon of Qur'ān and Ḥadīth	55
Conclusions	60
Appendix: Some Documentary Evidence	62
2. Early Islamic Piety	64
Qur'ānic Piety	64
The Qur'ān and History	75
Survival of the Pious Tradition	85
Documentary Evidence	85
Literary Evidence	89
The Pious Tradition and History	94
3. Styles of Legitimation in the Early Islamic Community of Believers	98
Piety as a Form of Legitimation	98

Genealogical Legitimation	104
Theocratic Legitimation (Appeal to Divine Will)	111
Historicizing Legitimation: General Considerations	112
Historicizing Legitimation in the Islamic Tradition	114

PART II
The Emergence of Early Islamic Historical Writing

4. The Contours of the Early Islamic Historiographical Tradition	125
Introduction	125
Thematic Balance in al-Ṭabarī's Annals	127
Other Historians' Master Narratives	132
Memory and History	138
Themes and Issues in the Early Islamic Narrative Tradition ..	141
5. Themes of Prophecy	147
Nubūwa	149
Qur'ān-Related Narratives	154
6. Themes of Community	160
Umma	160
Cult and Administration	166
Taxation	171
7. Themes of Hegemony	174
Futūḥ	174
Khilāfa (Caliphate)	182
8. Themes of Leadership	184
Fitna	184
Sīrat al-khulafā'	190
Pre-Islamic Arabian History	196
Pre-Islamic Iran	198
Ridda	200
9. Authenticity, Transformation, and Selection of Historiographical Themes	203

The Narrative Tradition: Themes, Continuities, and Authenticity	203
The Narrative Tradition: Historicization and Hybridization ..	209
Marginal Themes and Local Historiographical Schools	214
Medina	219
Mecca	221
al-Kūfa	222
al-Baṣra	223
Yemen	223
Egypt	224
Syria	226
Other Marginal Themes: Apocalyptic	228
10. Chronology and the Development of Chronological Schemes	230
Appendix: Table of Named Years	249
11. Some Formal and Structural Characteristics of Early Islamic Historiography	255
The Ḥadīth Format	255
Problems of Context	260
Problems of Transmission	263
Topoi and Schematizations	266
Appendix: Ibn Ishāq's Account of the Conquest of Fiḥl and Damascus	272
12. Conclusions	275
An Overview of the Growth of Early Islamic Historiography ..	275
The Pre-Historicist Phase (to ca. 50 AH)	276
The Proto-Historicist Phase (ca. 25 AH to ca. 100 AH) ...	276
The Early Literate Phase (ca. 75 AH– ca. 150 AH)	280
The Late Literate Phase (“Classical Islamic Historiography,” ca. 125 AH– ca. 300 AH)	280
Some General Reflections on Early Islamic Historiography ...	282
The Question of Multiple Orthodoxies	285
Epilogue: What Became of the Classical Historiographical Tradition?	291
Appendix: Chronological List of Early Texts	297

Bibliography and Abbreviations	307
Index	345